What is the problem this feature will solve?

The test runner currently only generates TAP output. Users would like a way to author and use reporters in a format other than TAP.

What is the feature you are proposing to solve the problem?

Now that the TAP parser has landed, it would be nice to define some type of reporter API built on top of the parser output. Node should probably ship one reporter that is easier on the eyes than TAP, and can serve as an example of how to create a reporter.
